1. Introduction

Language is one of the most important things in human's everyday life, through language humans can communicate and socialize with each other, share thoughts and feelings, also express emotions (Al-Mahrooqi & Denman, 2016; Rusmiyanto et al., 2023). Humans can communicate with each other by means of verbal communication, audiovisual communication, and written communication. Without language and communication, humans cannot express emotion or understand each other, therefore why language and communication are two of the most important things in human's life (Allington & Mayor, 2022; García-Sánchez & Clouet, 2022; Sukmawati, Imanah, et al., 2023). There are a few examples of audiovisual communication and written communication that humans can use to communicate or express thoughts with each other either directly or indirectly, such as mail, poster, movies, songs, newspaper, magazine and many more. These types of communication are included in works of literature (Dung, 2021). Literature is an oral or written work with its characteristics, namely originality, artistry, beauty in content, and expression. Literature cannot be separated from the language itself, it is like one of the parts of human everyday life (Crystal, 2003; Hoye, 2014; Sukmawati, Marzuki, et al., 2023).

Song is one of example from work of written literature; song contains two important elements, such as lyrics and music, and is delivered through the sound that can be heard by humans with nice lyrics and melodies (Octoberlina, 2023). A song can be used for many purposes, such as entertainment, a media to tell a story, a form of a protest, or expressing the song's writer's feelings or emotions (Hari & Agustin, 2020; Muhamad & Rahmat, 2020). From listening to the songs, humans can tell if someone tried to express the feelings, emotions, and thoughts through the songs. The song's writer can tell a story directly or indirectly to the listeners (Ananthi, 2018; Octaberlina, 2023). The figurative language is usually used by the song's writer when the message is delivered indirectly. Figurative language can be defined as a term or phrase that contain a different meaning or a hidden meaning depending on the writer of the song or a form of picture language (Metrouh & Nedjai, 2022). By using figurative language in the lyrics, the song's writer wants to tell a story indirectly with beautiful lyrics using figurative language (Ayuthaya, 2018). The song's writer also wants the listeners to find the meaning from it, and each listener has a different perspective for each figurative language that is shown in the lyrics (Ayuthaya, 2018). That is why listening to songs is a fun activity to do. Besides the fact that listening to songs can lift up the listener's mood, the listeners also get entertained and learn something new from the songs.
